OUR STORY

The bustle of vibrant central London and the tranquility of the Finnish countryside. These contrasting places are the inspiration behind the Cameron Design House vision. Our founder Ian Cameron has a shared history between the United Kingdom and the Nordic country and has combined these influences in his sculptural lighting pieces.

Proudly designed and manufactured in Britain, embracing the British tradition of exploring the far reaches of possibility together with the Nordic premise of clean lines and maximising lightness, Cameron Design House prioritises both form and function to achieve unique, contemporary designs.

Our luminaires are bespoke and handmade in our London studio by expert craftsmen and artisans. We combine organic and precisely engineered elements to create our feature installations, which are all customisable in size, configuration and finish.

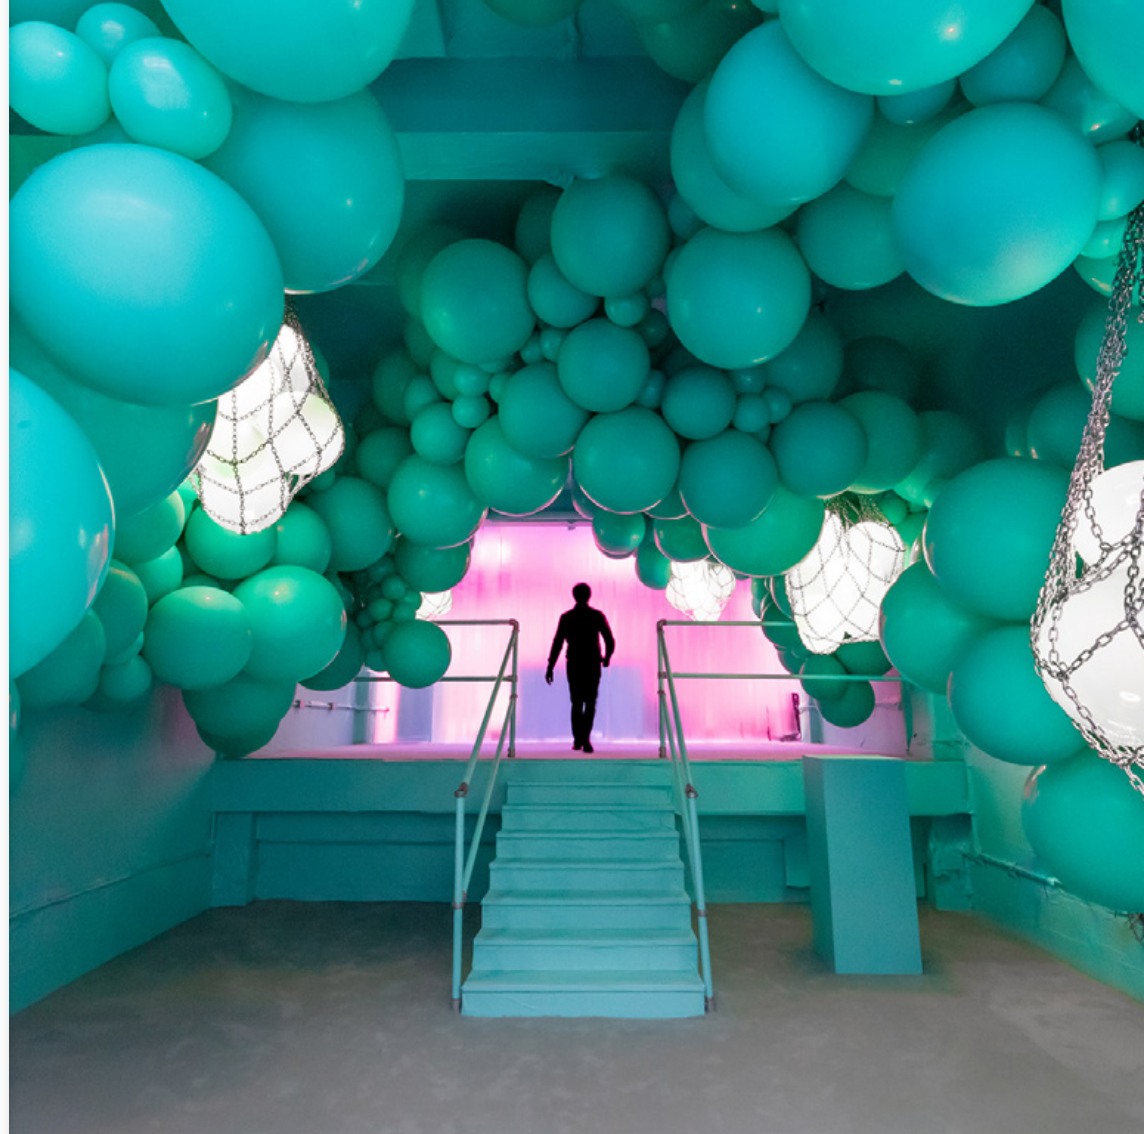

BESPOKE DESIGN

All our pieces are custom made in our London studio. The bespoke nature of our approach means we are able to tailor each specification to the individual requirements of any project. Our design and customisation service is offered without a fee regardless of the scale of a project and we provide the 3D models, renders, technical drawings and documentation to support the design.

Our flexible approach has seen our experienced team work with interior designers, architects, engineers and clients from around the world on highly demanding and prestigious projects.

All projects are regularly reviewed by our design panel, headed by our founder and Creative Director Ian Cameron. This review process ensures every piece leaving our workshop meets the aesthetic and technical standard we are renowned for.

All our pieces can be shipped worldwide. Everything is carefully wrapped before being boxed or crated to its new home. Although London is where we reside (and Finland our spiritual home) we have clients around the globe. Much of our work can be seen in the UK, US and Canada, while we also have clients in China, Russia, Hong Kong, New Zealand, Australia, Dubai and the gulf to name only a few.

WORKSHOP

The London district of St John's Wood, better known for The Abbey Road Studios and Lords Cricket Ground, is where our workshop and design studio are located off a leafy residential street . Our workshop team are dedicated to quality craftsmanship, meticulously creating all our designs by hand.

We keep a tidy workshop, always buzzing with activity and we invite all our clients to come and see us at work and view our display pieces.

With all of our operations in the one location our design team is part of the entire process, right through to shipping. This ensures the vision is not diluted and the small details never missed, while allowing flexibility and a personal, responsive service for our clients.

All of our pieces are delivered with comprehensive installation instructions and our technical team is always available to help with any issues. Typically, installation is carried out by our clients lighting installer, however we also offer a global site supervision service which puts one of our experts onsite to guide your installer through the whole process.
